DEUTZ initiates phased resumption of production

- DEUTZ plants in Germany resume production on April 20
- Spanish site in Zafra operational again since April 14

The DEUTZ plants in Germany will be progressively resuming production from today, Monday, April 20, 2020. The company had shut down large parts of its European production sites on April 1 due to the coronavirus crisis. Operations will now resume with extended safety measures to protect the health of the workforce. The DEUTZ site in Zafra, Spain, already resumed production on April 14.

As Dr. Frank Hiller, Chairman of the DEUTZ AG Board of Management, explains: “We are resuming production to meet customer demand. The health of our employees remains the focus of our efforts, and we are keeping a close eye on the situation in case we have to react to developments at short notice.”
